The Secret of Style

SATTIN KANCHIVARAM SILK

Even silk is a type of silk fabric that is characterized by its glossy surface and smooth texture. The glossy surface is created by a series of fine, wavy, and irregular threads that are woven into the fabric. These threads reflect light in a way that gives the fabric its characteristic sheen.

The smooth texture is created by a combination of the high-quality silk yarns used to make the fabric and the way the fabric is woven. Sattin silk is typically made from long, smooth silk threads, which are woven together to create a smooth, glossy surface. This results in a fabric that is smooth and shiny to the touch.
